

EXAMINATION PREPARATORY COURSES

A number of organizations and private companies offer examination preparatory courses to assist candidates planning to write the Board's certification examination (CRSPEX). Because candidates for the CRSPEX often ask where to take preparatory courses, a list of providers is posted as a courtesy to candidates in the "Examinations" area of the website. It may not include all providers and is not updated regularly.

Other than materials copyrighted and/or published by the BCRSP (e.g. Guide to Registration, Examination Blueprint) the BCRSP does not have any involvement in the development, content or distribution of any courses or materials associated with preparing for the CRSPEX. The BCRSP does not endorse any of the providers listed, nor does the BCRSP evaluate the providers or the providers' material for consistency with the BCRSP's Examination Blueprint, nor does the BCRSP benefit financially from any examination preparatory course.

Enrolment in an examination preparatory course is not a requirement for candidates submitting certification applications to the BCRSP.

The Board cannot warrant that attendance at any preparatory course will result in certification. While the subject content has been chosen as representative of the knowledge required of an ohs&e generalist, the successful completion of the CRSPEX is dependent upon a combination of the applicant's academic background, ohs&e experience and individual preparation.

Please contact preparatory course providers directly about their course schedules, fees or matters related to satisfaction with their services.
